Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 19 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy and windy, with outbreaks of rain, and becoming mild.

Today:
Cloudy with outbreaks of rain, although many eastern areas are likely to remain largely dry. It will become mild, after a chilly start to the day in places, although temperatures will be offset by the windy conditions. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining cloudy, mild and rather windy, particularly over high ground and along the Lincolnshire coast. Further outbreaks of rain are likely, mainly across western areas and especially Derbyshire. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Saturday:
Remaining cloudy, mild and rather windy, particularly over high ground and along the Lincolnshire coast. Further outbreaks of rain are likely, mainly across western areas and especially Derbyshire. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Sunday lighter winds, cloudy with outbreaks of rain gradually fading away. Monday cloudy, with probably further outbreaks of rain. Tuesday becoming windy with occasional rain arriving. Average to mild temperatures.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.